INTERSECTING PASTS

Collaborative Working at History's Fuzzy Boundaries

Lisa Regazzoni

Bielefeld University, GER

Ingrid Mann

University of Norway, NOR

The workshop aims to explore new forms of cooperation in the multidisciplinary study of the past. An interdisciplinary and international group of scholars of different backgrounds ranging from Space Physics, Chemistry and Geology to Paleoanthropology, Archaeology, History, and Philosophy is called to rethink the question of what history is, namely at the boundary of different disciplinary fields – between the Natural Sciences and the Humanities.
